This is a stunning visual showcase of Barcelona's street art renaissance. The new concept of urban art resists being caged within the walls of abandoned factories, run down housing estates, and subway cars. Its motives are much broader than those of the movement that started more than thirty years ago - we can now speak of a new "renaissance," an explosion of creativity, new ideas, and talent with thousands of artists from all over the world who display their innovative works of art on the streets, using them as a gigantic museum.
